We went here on the recommendation of friends who ate at a five guys in Atlanta, GA.

They were talked into eating there by their granddaughters. Later they found that five guys believe that paying their employees a living wage with benefits give them an edge. Corporations are usually not that bright so we were happy to purchase food here.

This is our second time here and it has just opened at this location.

The food is good for a fast food hamburger joint. Although they serve way too much food for old folks like us but well worth the stop.

This restaurant is not the cheapest restaurant in the city by any means but the food is worth the price. Get the little hamburger which is a quarter pounder. The regular hamburger is two quarter pound patties on a single bun. The fries are abundant and excellent. There is other food here but I was here for the burger and fries and they have:

Dogs:
- Kosher Style Hot Dog
- Cheese Dog
- Bacon Dog
- Bacon Cheese Dog

The web site has a Click here for Nutritional Information link. For those who are interested. To save you time, this is not a diet food restaurant.

Sandwiches:
- Veggie Sandwich
- Cheese Veggie Sandwich
- Grilled Cheese

Note: Veggie Sandwiches do not contain veggie burger patties.

Fries:
- Five Guys Style
- Cajun Style

It is well worth the stop.
